“ My thoughts and prayers to Aliyah's family and friends. I worked with her briefly at Prairie View. Aliyah had a beautiful smile. Losing someone so suddenly is always hard. Something that always touched me when dealing with grief is this: "We learn to go through the world without their physical presence but their spirit remains woven into the fabric of our being, we carry them in our hearts, their laughter echoing in our memoires.."

“ Rarely does one encounter, even in a lifetime, an extraordinary soul who touches our lives in ways words can hardly capture—Aliyah Howard was that soul. Though she was taken from us far too soon, the impact of her life continues to reverberate through every heart she touched, every life she changed, and every cause she championed.

Aliyah was a true warrior for social justice. She fought tirelessly for equality, fairness, and the dignity of all people. Her passion for justice burned brightly in everything she did, inspiring everyone around her to do better, be better, and stand up for what is right. Her commitment to fighting for change wasn't just a cause—it was her calling, one she pursued with unmatched dedication, compassion, and courage.

As a teacher, Aliyah was nothing short of exceptional. She didn't just teach the language and literature of the content she loved so much; she taught lessons in kindness, empathy, and the importance of standing up for others. She saw her students not as they were, but as they could become, always encouraging them to reach for their dreams, no matter the obstacles. Her classroom was a place of hope, a sanctuary for young minds to learn and grow, empowered by the knowledge that someone believed in them.

But beyond her work, Aliyah was a dear friend and confidant, a constant source of light and warmth to those lucky enough to call her their own. She brought joy into every room she entered, a smile and laugh that were infections that could brighten even the darkest of days. Her kindness knew no bounds, and her unwavering support for her friends and loved ones was a testament to the incredible woman she was. She gave love freely, and in return, she was loved deeply by all who knew her.

Though Aliyah's life was tragically cut short, we take comfort in knowing that the work she started is far from over. The fight for justice, equality, and compassion she so fiercely believed in still continues. And it is now our responsibility, our honor, to carry on the legacy she built. The lessons she taught us, the inspiration she gave us, and the fire she lit within us will never fade. We are her torchbearers, and it is up to us to ensure that her work continues, to fight for the causes she believed in, and to love as she loved.

Aliyah's light may no longer shine in the way we wish, but it will forever live in the hearts of all who knew her. We will carry her spirit with us, honoring her by living out her values and spreading the kindness, justice, and love she showed to the world. Rest in peace, dear Aliyah. You may be gone, but your legacy will never be forgotten. Your work was not finished, and we will keep it going—for you, for all you fought for, and for the future you dreamed of.

Thank you for taking time, time that unbeknownst to any of us turned out to be more precious than we first realized, to share yourself with us here at Laramie High School. You will be missed every single day and the chasm you have left behind will never be filled. We miss you dearly, and though you are gone, you will never be forgotten.
