Her greatest pride and joy was her son, Jason, whom she always supported as his #1 fan.

Professionally, Georgia worked as an accountant and retired from Bacone College.

“ Georgia was a good friend of many years. She had a beautiful giving heart. We were neighbors for a few years when Jason was born. Life was challenging for this single mom and they quickly became a part of our family. She was a smart accountant who loved Jason more than life and he brought such joy into her world. I think Georgia epitomized the fact that no matter what you are dealt the good Lord always makes a way. She has now found everlasting peace and joy. She trusted Jesus and he showed her the way. God bless you Jason, I love you 🙏❤️

“ Georgia was very important to me and my children during a time when it was very much needed. I will always remember how easy it was to share a laugh with her. I regret not keeping in touch. My heart goes out to Jason. I hope you know how much your mother loved you.
