“ Any man can make a child and stick his name on the birth certificate. It takes a special man to step up and care for a child who is not his own. He did that for me my brother and sister.

Every since I can remember he helped raise me, and help shape me into who I am today. He made the choice to make me one of his own and he never made me question that.

He never made Haven question his love for her as her grandfather.

No, it's not flesh and blood that makes us Dad and daughter but our love for each other

These past few years have been far from perfect. But when people ask me who my dad is, I will always be proud to say his name.
