“ Bob was a man that will always be remembered as a big, strong, construction/contractor, hunter, fisherman that always put his family first and stood by his family without question in any and all needs during his lifetime. His best friend George Fletcher was always there for him for so many years when the two of them always had each others back without question and never missed a beat during those last tough years when Bob's health failed him and he was confined to home a lot. But George was always there either visiting him in his home usually telling some of his funny stories or insisting Bob go with him to drive around the dam or lakes or rivers or cafes or coffee shops or other old stomping grounds. George was that one true friend to Bob that few people will ever experience. The family will always be indebted to him and forever grateful to George and will never forget his dedicated and sincere friendship to our beloved Bob.
