“ I worked with Stan on the railroad in Muskogee, OK and Fort Worth, TX. One of my memories is we were working the night shift in Muskogee, and I had told the crew to go on home and I was walking the yard to get a good list of the cars in the tracks we had switched. It was really quiet and dark and Stan had quietly walked around to the other end of the track I was walking down. He jumped out screaming and almost scared me to death. What a laugh we all got out of this after I had quit shaking and got my breath back. He was a great friend and co-worker.
