“ We meet on yahoo when there was chat rooms. we talked while he ended up moving here in the town we are now. It took awhile before we started dating than two years later he asked me to marry him in October of 2006 by that December we got married and went to Branson for our honeymoon. We had been married now for 17 yrs and 4 months. We never had child of our own. But we adopted our fur babies and spoiled them instead. Tim was the love of my life my world. He had been sick on and off for many years but he got through it and I stood by his side. Taking care of him. Making sure he was ok. We had so many good times through it all. But when he got sick in November he just could not bounce back like he had in the past. He just keep getting worse and even though I knew he was sicker than normal I had my faith he would get through. But I think his body through the dialysis and the meds and his many health problems that he had was just wore out. So god decided to take him home. Even though I miss him like crazy. I know deep down he is in a better place. It's going to hard to live with out him. I know day I will see him again. Until than I love you with all my heart and soul and I will get through this time day by day.
